

Privacy Protection Policy

■ Application

The following privacy protection policy applies to the protection of your personal data collection, use, and security conducted on the company's website and mobile software applications, excluding on websites connected through the company's website and mobile software applications. As your activities are conducted on these connected websites, the protection for personal data is subject to privacy protection policy of each connected website.

■ Regarding Personal Data Collection

The website and mobile software applications of the company do not collect any personal identification data through simple browsing or downloading excluding the following conditions:

1. Comments or stock affairs inquiry email services:

If you use the comment or stock affairs inquiry email services on the company's website via your email account, your name and email address are necessary as reference to our reply.

2. Email newsletter subscription:

When you subscribe to our email newsletter, your registered email address is necessary for sending the newsletter on a regular basis.

3. Use of mobile software applications

When our mobile software applications are in use, your ID, tax ID number, account, and other related data are required for registration and identification to execute related rights and keep track of related activities for retention of proof.

4. Others

Please be advised that other websites connected through our company's website and mobile software applications may also collect your own personal data. Regarding the personal data provided on your own initiative, these connected websites have their own privacy policies, and their data collection is not subject to our company's privacy protection policy; therefore, our company is not held legally accountable.

■ Regarding use of personal data

The website and mobile software applications of our company never sell, trade, or lease any of your personal data to other groups, individuals, or private companies except for following conditions:

1. cooperation with legal investigation of a judicial unit
2. cooperation with an authority for the duty and need of investigation or use
3. on the basis of belief in good faith that disclosure of your personal data is required by law
4. Online activities and surveys:

Names, ID numbers, tax ID numbers, accounts, phone numbers, email addresses, and addresses collected through our company's website and mobile software applications are used for identification for event results, notifications, and analyses. Other data are only used for service analyses or academic research. Unless all data are provided under the consent of the user, the company will not use them for other purposes.

■ Data security protection policy

The company fortifies data security with strict policy; it employs technology such as firewall to protect against illegal invasion, damage, or website data theft. Based on potential risks during online transmission, a part of the company's website system protects the security of data storage, retrieval, and transmission through ID verification and encrypted security mechanism such as Secure Sockets Layer.

Privacy protection amendment

With rapid technology development, the company will modify the offered privacy protection policy statement as needed to execute and protect your privacy rights and Internet security. Upon completion of related policy amendment, it will be published on the company's website and mobile software applications at the earliest possible time as a reminder.

Privacy protection policy inquiry

If you have any questions about our company's privacy protection policy, please contact us by email or phone.